Yale and Harvard Clash Today in Historic Annual Struggle

HANK'S THIRTY-THIRD DAY--THE CHINK BUTTS IN

--BY FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE CURE.
Once I was a sportst bloke,
Once I thought I knew it all,
Once my brain was badly buffed
And my pride was over full.

Then I started, foolish cave,
Doping out this football stuff--
Poking at a prophet with
More than ordinary bluff.

Now I know where I belong--
Now I ought to go and sit;
Humbly! Bless your little heart,
Humbly! Bless your little heart.

Our regards to Umpire Bill Klein as the bravest of the brave. When a line umpire is willing to take a chance in the middle of the Pacific ocean with thirty ball players, there's no debate left as to where the Red Badge of Courage belongs. One carless punch--a subtle, delicate splash--and a thousand wrongs would be avenged.

We offer the prediction that by the first of next May Wilbur Robinson will be regarded as one of the biggest managers in baseball.

If Robby could secure an infielder or an outfielder who can cover as much ground standing up as he does sitting down, there'd be no question as to the whereabouts of the next N. L. pennant.

The old Baltimore star has a great chance in Brooklyn, and those who know him are pulling hard for him to get by. There are too few regular guys around not to clip in a boost when one of them stars. There's to every ounce of him and all the way around.

WHERE THE FAULT RESTS.

Carlisle has shown that new football, so-called, isn't to be blamed for weak attacks shown by so many of the eastern eleven.

The fact that Yale and Princeton have only scored two touchdowns in four years doesn't mean that touchdowns can't be made under the rules. It merely means that Yale and Princeton haven't in four years developed anything even remotely resembling a Carlisle attack.

The Indiana have an attack which combines speed, power, strategy and resourcefulness. Against a big, powerful eleven they scored 6 touchdowns in one game. Yale and Princeton this season have both failed to score a touchdown in three of their starts. And the reason is fairly obvious. You can't score touchdowns with a good defense any more than you can make runs in baseball by due biddling or good pitching.

Some day Yale or Princeton will take a chance on something beyond a plan to defend their own goal and, in addition to having a regular game, there will be a decided split in the tie now left over from 1912.

Another big booster for the Carlisle system is Charley Atherton, the old Penn. star fullback. He says the Indiana have an attack at least two touchdowns stronger than any other eleven in the East.

SMITH VS. LANFORD.

Our old Heidelberg and Oxford chum, Gunbust Smith, has dragged out the White Horse contingent forward by his margin over Sam Lanford, but there is still a feeling that perhaps the Smoke was only sailing for another match.

Lanford has undoubtedly come back, and as Johnson has slipped back even further, the heavyweight brigade is now without a real mainstay for the first time in many years. When Sullivan passed, Corbett was waiting. Pittsmeadows supplanted Corbett and Jeffries followed Pittsmeadows was picked up where Jeffries left off, and from Sullivan to Johnson there was talent enough to spare. But now from the entire assignment, white, black, brown, green or yellow, there isn't a big league left in the lot.

But this slump is only a temporary affair. Within the next year or so they'll be booming an entry beyond "Jim Jeffries at his best." But up to date we haven't a keen enough vision to keep him under fire from among those now exchanging thumps in the W. H. brigade.

Football, baseball, tennis, golf, etc., have all maintained their list of stars year after year. The lightweight section of batiana has also held its standard. It's only in the heavyweight corner that the cave has been marked and the array of cheese so widely extant.

HARVARD DUE.

Up through 1912 Yale has achieved twenty-two victories against Harvard's six. Which margin indicates that it is about time Harvard was closing up the gap. Which set of figures also make Yale's slump all the more notable. Up through 1910 Yale had won twenty-two out of twenty-seven Harvard games. And since 1910 Yale hasn't scored upon the crimson in any sort of fashion.

A Blue follower charges us with unfairness in our contention that Yale hasn't developed any attack. Could there be any terrific kick to an attack unable to score a touchdown in three games from an incomplete defense where two of the three contents were against minor eleven?

Harvard, on the other wing, has failed to score a touchdown in but one contest, and that contest was started upon the surface of a billow lake where any sort of offense was practically useless. The true test of Harvard's offense will be shown upon dry field against the Blue defense, for Yale has a team now in the field that will take a world of pounding before its goal is crossed.

It seems to us that we were hurried from the maelstrom of a world series into this football tussle about a fortnight ago. And here the curtain is fluttering upon the finish of the closing act. One of the main beauties of football is that you don't have two months of it left--mostly doubleheaders--after the championship race has been packed away beyond all doubt.

Louisiana Championship

(By Associated Press.)

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 22.--The championship of Louisiana is the stake in the football game here this afternoon between Tulane and Louisiana State university. L. S. U. was the victor over Tulane in 1911 and 1912. The 7-0 team arrived here this morning after rigorous training in New Orleans.

For men they are outwitted by the Tigers. The local players will wear uniforms that they may be more easily identified, according to an announcement made by Physical Director Stroud.

Bayless Best Coast Hitter

Former Cracker Outfielder Led League With Average of .324 in 195 Games

Dick Bayless, formerly a member of the Cracker and Gulf teams, led the Coast hitters this season with a percentage of .324, going through 195 games. It will be recalled that Bayless was a right per little outfielder for Atlanta in 1910 until a minor difficulty arose, when he was traded to Mobile for Davey Callahan. Dick stuck with Mobile the rest of that season and 1911. In 1912 he was traded to Map Hogan's Venice club of the Pacific Coast league.

Hogan's club, by the way, presents quite an array of southern league talent, most of whom are old-timers. Howdy Elliott, scrappy little catcher of the Venice in 1911 and 1912, caught 145 games for the Venice club. Howdy hit the ball around pretty lively, at the rate of .312. Jack Tomlinson, ex-Turks, Yankee, American association player, and also Vol, was Howdy's understudy during part of the season. Geoff Ferguson, also an ex-Turks, was one of Venice's hitters, but has a poor record.

Jimmy Johnson, the Mercury footed former Baron, beside making a world's record for base stealing, which has been daily exploited in the daily press, was one of the eight coast regular players to bat above .300. Johnson was with Prince, but goes to the Cubs for a 1914 tryout.

First Grid Team Had 25 Players

American intercollegiate football had its beginning November 6, 1869, when Rutgers, defeated Princeton, 6-0.

Under the pioneer American college code each team had twenty-five players. Other rules were:

There must be four judges and two referees.

The team winning the first toss is to have choice of position, while the winner of the second loss has the first kick-off.

There must be no throwing or running with the ball, and such constitutes a foul when the ball must be thrown perpendicularly in the air by the entire team.

There must be no holding of the ball nor free kicks.

When a ball passes beyond the limit of the field by the side of the goal it shall be kicked on from the boundary by the side having that goal.

When the ball passes beyond the limit at the side of the field it shall be kicked on horizontally to the boundary by the side which kicked it out.

There shall be no holding or tripping of players.

Yale Rowers Consider Change in Coaching

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 22.--Captain T. B. Denmore, of the Yale crew, returned from New York last night, where he had held an all-day conference with the Yale rowing committee concerning the question of changing the coaching methods. No final decision was reached. Another conference will be held next week. It was generally believed at Yale that English coaching methods will not be retained.

Emoryhanks, Penn. State, Princeton, Syracuse and Yale.

The contest is about six miles in length. Preliminary events have not started. The full team stand out prominently as likely winners and the title appears to be very much in doubt.

McGugin Eases Up On Vandy Practice

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22.--For fear of Vanderbilt's football squad becoming overtrained before the Thanksgiving game with Sewanee, Coach McGugin has eased up hard practice and is contenting himself with working out secret plays. The last scrimmage was Wednesday and there will be no more till Monday or Tuesday. McGugin is working mainly on the line. Neither Vanderbilt nor Sewanee plays tomorrow.

Delaware, Virginia and North Carolina will be present.

Dr. James Neismit, a member of the rules committee, will preside at a meeting November 21 at Lawrence, Kan.

PANAMA THE CANAL IN PICTURE AND PROSE EDUCATES AS WELL AS ENTERTAINS

Willis J. Abbott, the author of this book, takes you in at the front door of Panama, tells you of the time when Columbus searched for a natural waterway to the Pacific Ocean, brings you up through the centuries of revolution and warfare, and on through to the realization of the greatest achievement of this day and age. He tells you of the people and the country, of the past as well as the present, and even dips into the future. The story is inspiring--filled to the full with human interest--a story that will live as long as the great canal itself.
